

OUR FUTURE AS THE UNIVERSITY OF ADELAIDE COLLEGE

1 September 2016

Dear Partner,

Kaplan Higher Education is delighted to announce the signing of a Preferred Pathway Provider Agreement with the University of Adelaide. The agreement sees Bradford College and the University of Adelaide enter the next phase of their longstanding and successful partnership, further strengthening the relationship after being awarded Preferred Pathway Provider status in 2014. As a demonstration of our mutual commitment to the relationship, from 10 October 2016, Bradford College will be known as the University of Adelaide College.

“This agreement between the University of Adelaide and Kaplan is a further extension of our collaboration. It’s an important strategic step in the provision of a quality higher education experience in South Australia,” says the University’s Deputy Vice-Chancellor and Vice-President (Academic), Professor Pascale Quester.

The College offers eligible International students who do not qualify for direct entry into the University, an alternative pathway to bachelor degree studies at the University of Adelaide. Building upon 13 years of close co-operation, the University and the College wish to more closely align in order to provide an improved student experience and seamless transition between the two institutions.

The University of Adelaide College will continue to offer academic pathway programs preparing international students for studies at the University of Adelaide, one of Australia’s prestigious Group of Eight (Go8) universities. The College programs include Foundation Studies, a pathway to year one bachelor degree studies at the University and a Degree Transfer program, a pathway to year two of selected bachelor degrees, both can be packaged with pre-session English language studies where needed.

The agreement signifies an important milestone in the relationship facilitating greater opportunity for cooperation, with the prospect of new pathways and additional benefits, beyond on-campus program delivery and access to University services and facilities.

Professor Quester says: “We will continue to explore opportunities with Kaplan to add new programs to the University of Adelaide College, for the benefit of students.”

The University of Adelaide confirmed the signing of our seven-year Preferred Pathway Provider Agreement on 30 August 2016. (<http://www.adelaide.edu.au/news/news87362.html>). The first intake into University of Adelaide College will be in October 2016.

As a result of this announcement we are certain as a valued agent you will have a lot of questions – we have prepared the attached Frequently Asked Questions document for your reference and to outline the next steps.

Sincerely,

Steve Knussen
