China study abroad program

Complete 24 credit points over 12 weeks of study at China's top institution, Peking University. Study Chinese political, social and international business dynamics with generous financial support.

About the program

China is Australia's biggest trading partner and a key participant in global business and world affairs.

At some stage in your career, you are almost certain to engage in some way with Chinese organisations and culture.

Monash has partnered with Peking University in Beijing, the number one ranked university in China, and developed a unique study program for Monash University students.

The program is delivered in English and offers participants the chance to learn about the dynamics, opportunities and challenges of doing business in China.

Upon conclusion, all students will become a lifetime alumnus of Peking University, resulting in invitations to key events at the University annually and a lifetime opportunity to mix with some of the most influential leaders in China.

What you'll study

Peking University study program gives you the opportunity to complete 24 credit points (full semester load) over 12 weeks. In the program you will study:

Student experience

You'll study with friends from Monash and mix with PKU students on campus. In addition to the intensive class based courses, industry visits and five key cultural excursions are planned.

This program appeals to students with an interest in international business, politics and China's role in the world, and those who want to experience living in a different culture. This knowledge and experience is highly valued by employers both domestically and abroad.

Partner: Peking University

The program is designed by Peking University in collaboration with Monash Business School. Peking University was established in 1898; it is currently the highest ranked university in China and among the top 50 universities in the world.

Eligibility

To participate, you need to be in your second or third year of study at Monash University, have a strong academic record, and have four elective units available in your degree. Local students and those who hold a visa that permits enrolment in an intensive study abroad unit can apply. However, because the objective is to experience a different culture, this program is not open to international students from China. Please note that the Australian Government Mobility grants mentioned below are only available to Australian citizens.

In total, there are 24 places available.

Program costs

Students will enrol in four Monash University study abroad units. Your current fee arrangements at Monash (HECS for domestics, Full Fee for international) will cover the tuition cost at PKU.

In addition to general living expenses, students are responsible for

- Flights estimate $1,000
- Accommodation estimate $2,700
- Food estimate $1,000 (eating on campus)
- Visa estimate $150
- Internet estimate $25 per month = $100
- Excursions and industry visits $1400 (payable before departure)

Total estimate: $6,350

Scholarships and grants

To cover the costs of the program, all participants will receive a $900 travel grant generously provided by Monash Abroad.

Eligible Australian citizens participating in the program also receive a Mobility Scholarship of $7000 provided by the Australian Government's New Colombo Plan.

In addition to the Australian citizenship requirement, the New Colombo Plan Mobility Scholarship is not available to those who were born in China.

Visas

Students are advised to make their own enquiries regarding Visa and vaccination requirements as these will vary according to nationality. Peking University will provide the required invitation letter for visa applications and costs of visa are to be covered by the student.

Travel insurance

Full travel insurance will be provided by Monash Abroad.
